

EVROPSKÝ FILOZOFICKÝ A HISTORICKÝ DISKURZ

Svazek 6
1. vydání
2020

EUROPEAN PHILOSOPHICAL AND HISTORICAL DISCOURSE

Volume 6
Issue 1
2020

DOI: 10.46340/ephd.2020.6.1

Přístup redakce

Evropský filozofický a historický diskurz – mezinárodní časopis věnovaný zkoumání aktuálních problémů moderní filosofie, dějin filozofického myšlení, teorie a filozofie dějin, analýzy historických procesů v různých světových regionech, včetně dějin střední a východní Evropy. Pro publikaci v časopisu přijímají se vysoce kvalitní články, což představují důležité inovativní, teoretické, koncepční, metodické a empirické příspěvky v příslušných oborech filozofie a historické vědy. V časopisu se uplatňuje systém anonymního recenzování (peer-review) pro ověření kvality vědeckých článků.

Evropský filozofický a historický diskurz má velký zájem zejména o mezioborové studie ve filozofickém a historickém směru. Uvítané jsou zejména zkoumání v rámci pokročilé a slibné oblasti historie, včetně výzkumu o ustní historie a historické informatiky.

Evropský filozofický a historický diskurz přijímá k publikaci jenom původní materiály a nebere v úvahu možnost zveřejňovat dříve otištěné články.

Redakční kolégie:

Viorel Vizerianu, Univerzita Bukurešťská (Rumunsko)

Emma Hansová, PhD., profesorkyně, státní podnik (škola) “Jižnoukajinská Národní pedagogická univerzita jm. K.D. Ušinského” (Ukrajina)

Inna Golubovyč, PhD., profesorkyně, Odesská Národní univerzita jm. I.I. Mečnikova (Ukrajina)

Mykola Zhurba, D.Sc. filozofie, profesor, Regionální institut postgraduálního pedagogického vzdělávání města Lugansk (Ukrajina)

Oksana Dovhopolová, PhD. phyl., profesorkyně, Odesská Národní univerzita jm. I.I. Mečnikova (Ukrajina)

Rustem Kadyrzanov, ScD (Doktor filozofie), Profesor, Kazašská univerzita Mezinárodních vztahů a světových jazyků, jm. Ablai chána, Ústavu filozofie, politologie a religionistiky (Kazachstán)

Oana Kamelie Serban, PhD, Univerzita Bukurešťská (Rumunsko)

Oleksii Kchalapsis, Ph.D., Doktor filozofie, profesor, Národní hutní akademie Ukrajiny (Ukrajina)

Taras Goncharuk, Doktor historie, profesor, Odesská Národní univerzita jm. I.I. Mečnikova (Ukrajina)

Liudmyla Kormyč, PhD., Doktor historie, profesorkyně, Národní univerzita “Odeská právnická akademie” (Ukrajina)

Yrii Kotliar, PhD., Doktor historie, profesor, Černomorská státní univerzita jm. Petra Mohyly (Ukrajina)

Yevgen Kuzmin, PhD., Doktor historie, muzeum Jad-Vašem (Izrael)

Mykola Russev, PhD., Doktor historie, Vyšší antropologická škola, Chisinau (Moldova)

Andrzej Strojnowski, PhD., Doktor historie, Akadémie im. Jana Długosza, Czesťochow (Polsko)

Oleksandr Bezručko, doctor v oboru umění, profesor, Kyjivská nacionální univerzita kultury a umění (Ukrajina)

Volodymyr Horpenko, PhD., doctor v oboru umění, professor, Kyjivská nacionální univerzita kultury a umění (Ukrajina)

Olena Ivanova, PhD. v oboru sociálních komunikaci, profesorkyně, Odesská Národní univerzita jm. I.I. Mečnikova (Ukrajina)

Tatiana Kuzněcova, PhD. v oboru sociálních komunikaci, profesorkyně, Národní univerzita «Odeská právnická akademie» (Ukrajina)

Jurij Loshkov, PhD., doctor v oboru umění, profesor, Charkivská Statní Akadémie umění (Ukrajina)

Lyudmyla Moskalyova, D.Sc. pedagogiky, profesorkyně, Státní pedagogická univerzita jm. Bogdana Chmelnického ve m. Melitopol' (Ukrajina)

Administrativní redaktory:

Mykola Poliovyi, PhD historie, doktor politických věd, profesor, Doněcká Národní univerzita jm. Vasyliia Stusa
Alina Polukhina, PhD v politických věd, Národní univerzita «Odeská právnická Academie»

Časopis je indexovaný v mezinárodních scientometrických databázích Index Copernicus International Journals Master List: <https://journals.indexcopernicus.com/search/details?id=46666>

Editorial Policy

The European philosophical and historical discourse is international Journal dedicated to researches on topical issues of modern philosophy, history of philosophical thought, cultural studies, theory and philosophy of history, analysis of historical processes in particular regions of the world, including history of Central and Eastern Europe countries. The Journal aims at publishing of high quality articles that may bring innovative and significant theoretical, conceptual, methodological and empirical contribution to relevant scientific fields. The Journal works with anonymous peer-review system that verifies scientific quality of submitted articles.

The European philosophical and historical discourse has a particular interest in interdisciplinary researches in the field of philosophy, cultural studies and history, but by no means restricts its interests to these spaces. Researches in the field of advanced and promising directions of history such as oral history and digital history are also welcomed.

The European philosophical and historical discourse accepts original materials which are not under consideration elsewhere at the time of submission and does not accept already published materials.

Editorial Committee:

Viorel Vizureanu, PhD, professor, University of Bucharest (Romania)

Emma Hansova, ScD in philosophy, professor, South Ukrainian National Pedagogical University named after K.D. Ushynskiy (Ukraine)

Inna Golubovych, ScD in philosophy, professor, Odessa National I.I. Mechnikov University (Ukraine)

Oksana Dovhopolova, ScD in philosophy, professor, Odessa National I.I. Mechnikov University (Ukraine)

Mykola Zhurba, D.Sc. in Philosophy Science, professor, Lugansk Regional Institute of Postgraduate Pedagogical Education (Ukraine)

Rustem Kadyrzhanov, ScD in philosophy, Professor, Kazakh Ablai khan University of International Relations and World Languages; Institute of Philosophy, Political Science and Religious Studies (Kazakhstan)

Oana Camelia Serban, PhD in philosophy, University of Bucharest (Romania)

Oleksii Halapsys, ScD in philosophy, professor, The National Metallurgical Academy of Ukraine (Ukraine)

Taras Honcharuk, ScD in history, professor, Odessa National I.I. Mechnikov University (Ukraine)

Liudmyla Kormych, ScD in history, professor, The National University "Odessa Law Academy" (Ukraine)

Yurii Kotliar, ScD in history, professor, Petro Mohyla Black Sea State university (Ukraine)

Yevhen Kuzmin, PhD in history, Yad Vashem Museum (Israel)

Mykola Russiev, ScD in history, High Anthropological School (Moldova)

Andrzej Stroinoivsky, ScD in history, professor, Jan Dlugosz Academy (Poland)

Oleksandr Bezruchko, Doctor of Arts, Professor, Kyiv National University of Culture and Arts (Ukraine)

Volodymyr Horpenko, Doctor of Arts, Professor, Kyiv National University of Culture and Arts (Ukraine)

Olena Ivanova, Doctor of Social communications, Professor, Odessa National I.I. Mechnikov University (Ukraine)

Tetiana Kuznietsova, Doctor of Social communications, Professor, National University "Odesa Law Academy" (Ukraine)

Yurii Loshkov, Doctor of Arts, Professor, Kharkiv State Academy of Culture (Ukraine)

Lyudmyla Moskalyova, D.Sc. in Pedagogical Science, Professor, Bogdan Khmelnytsky Melitopol State Pedagogical University (Ukraine)

Administrative Editor:

Mykola Polovyi, PhD in History, D.Sc. in Political Science, Professor, Vasyl' Stus Donetsk National University
Alina Polukhina, PhD in political science, National University "Odessa Law Academy"

The Journal is indexing by Index Copernicus:

<https://journals.indexcopernicus.com/search/details?id=46666>

EVROPSKÝ FILOZOFICKÝ A HISTORICKÝ DISKURZ

Evidenční číslo: MK ČR E 22312

Vydavatel: BEROSTAV DRUŽSTVO

Vlastislavova 562/15, 140 00, Praha 4 – Nusle

<http://ephd.cz>

Table of contents

SOCIAL AND POLITICAL HISTORY

Oleksandr Kiriakov, THE THEBES AND BOIOTIA AFTER THE BATTLE OF PLATEA	6
Andrii Shevchuk, SUPREME COURTS' ADVISORS AT THE RIGHT-BANK UKRAINE AS IMPLEMENTERS OF IMPERIAL EXPERTISE (1797-1831)	11
Volodymyr Shevchenko, INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES OF POLAND ON THE TERRITORY OF THE UKRAINIAN SSR IN 1921-1932: RECRUITMENT, TRAINING AND FINANCING	19
Tetiana Semanyshyn, PUBLIC ASSOCIATIONS OF UKRAINE IN THE CONTEXT OF ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL COMPANIES (1929-1935)	26
Ihor Shuiskyi, ADVERTISING AND COUNTER-ADVERTISING OF THE ALL-UKRAINIAN TRADING OFFICE «TORGSIN» IN 1931–1936	32
Liudmyla Rudnytska, GRANTING TOWN STATUS TO ROKYTNE VILLAGE IN VOLYN REGION DURING THE INTERWAR PERIOD	40

SOURCE STUDIES AND HISTORIOGRAPHY

Vitalii Liulka, THE NEWSPAPER "BORDER GUARD OF UKRAINE" AS A SOURCE OF RESEARCH ON MIGRATION MOVEMENTS TO UKRAINE (1992-2018)	48
Ihor Postolnyk, PROBLEMS OF MEDICAL CARE OF UKRAINIAN PEASANTRY OF THE SECOND HALF OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY IN THE RUSSIAN EMPIRE: HISTORIOGRAPHY OF THE PROBLEM	55

HISTORY OF CULTURE AND CULTUROLOGY

Veronika Riaboshapka, THE PLACE OF THE SANHUSHKO FAMILY IN THE SOCIO-POLITICAL LIFE OF THE POLISH-LITHUANIAN COMMONWEALTH	62
Ivan Tonkoshkur, «BODY POLITICS» AND UKRAINIAN IDEOLOGIES IN THE FIRST HALF OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY: D. DONTSOV, V. LYPYNSKYI	68
Anatolii Babynskyi, THE PHENOMENON OF “DIASPORIC RELIGION”: THE CASE OF THE THIRD WAVE OF UKRAINIAN EMIGRATION	73
Inna Bilotserkivska, DEVELOPMENT AND FUNCTIONING OF THE BOARDING SCHOOLS NETWORK IN THE SUMY REGION IN 1950–2020	82
Ruslana Potapenko, EDUCATION AS A MAIN FACTOR IN THE SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT OF UKRAINE: HISTORICAL EXPERIENCE OF THE PERIOD «PERESTROIKA» (1985-1991)	89
Taras Zaiets, DEVELOPMENT OF INSTITUTIONS OF CULTURE AND ARTS IN POLTAVA REGION IN 1991-2017	95

Tetiana Shershova, CULTURAL MEMORY AS A FACTOR IN THE FORMATION OF A NATIONAL IDENTITY: ON THE EXAMPLE OF FOLK-SONG PERFORMANCE OF POLTAVA REGION	100
Zhanna Shkliarenko, PERFORMANCE ART: ITS VARIABILITY IN UKRAINIAN CULTURE	105
Yaroslav Moskvín, ETHICAL AND ANTHROPOLOGICAL TYPES OF FICTION	114
Rahim Amir Hussain, “SPIRITUAL MEDICINE” OF ABU BAKR AR-RAZI IN INTERCULTURAL DIALOGUE: SOCIOPHILOSOPHICAL MEANINGS AND ORIENTATIONS	120
Serhii Hulevskyi, CULT TV VS. MAINSTREAM TELEVISION: PHILOSOPHICAL REFLECTION	127
Hanna Horokholynska, THE SEMANTIC CHARACTERISTICS OF THE HORSE IMAGE THROUGH THE PRISM OF CONVERGENT CONNOTATIONS BY THE EXAMPLE OF THE ICONOGRAPHY OF ST. BORIS AND GLIB	133

PHILOSOPHICAL AND RELIGIOUS STUDIES

Yaroslav Hnatiuk, PARADIGMATIC METHODOLOGICAL POSSIBILITIES OF HISTORICAL AND PHILOSOPHICAL SCIENCE	146
Viktoriiia Babiuk, THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE RELEVANCE CRITERION: FROM THE BEGINNING TO NOWADAYS	154
Vitalii Brynov, THE CHILDREN OF LIGHT AND THE CHILDREN OF DARKNESS: ETHICAL DIMENSIONS OF CHRISTIAN REALISM	160
Mariana Timonina, Karyna Kulik, CINEMATIC AESTHETICIZATION OF VIOLENCE BY THE PHILOSOPHY OF EVENTS	166
Fedir Strizhachuk, CONTROVERSIAL ASPECTS OF THE TRINITARIAN THEOLOGY OF K. BARTH: “MODES OF BEING” AND “FILIOQUE”	170
Andrii Shymanovych, KARL BARTH’S RADICALLY CHRISTOCENTRIC THEOLOGICAL EXEGESIS	177
Anatolii Dymchuk, FREEMASONRY SOCIAL DOCTRINE PHILOSOPHICAL FOUNDATIONS (FROM J. G. FICHTE TO THE PRESENT)	186
Andrii Pavliuchenko, MAX STIRNER’S PHILOSOPHY AND MODERN ANARCHISM	194
REQUIREMENTS TO MANUSCRIPTS (in Czech)	202
REQUIREMENTS TO MANUSCRIPTS (in English)	206

DOI: 10.46340/ephd.2020.6.1.11

Anatolii BabynskyiORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-1340-4608>Ukrainian Catholic University, Ukraine

THE PHENOMENON OF “DIASPORIC RELIGION”: THE CASE OF THE THIRD WAVE OF UKRAINIAN EMIGRATION

The article examines the phenomenon of the diasporic religion, which emerged in the third wave of Ukrainian emigration in the form of the Patriarchal Movement of the Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church. Recent studies on the role of the religion in diaspora show that for the first generation of immigrants, Church and religious practices can play an even more significant role in their lives than they have played before. The reason for this is that religion is able to bridge the “gap” in time in space resulted from the emigration and to give the “stable territory” amid the rapidly changing realities. It functions as a transtemporal and translocative tool connecting newly arrived immigrants with their homeland and its history and manifests in different aspects of religious life and practices. All these aspects and practices were fully developed within the Patriarchal Movement which thus can be seen as a Ukrainian case of the phenomenon of the diasporic religion.

Keywords: Ukrainian diaspora, Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church, diasporic religion, the Patriarchal Movement, religion and diaspora.

The concepts of diaspora and religion are related not only historically but also to some extent theologically, since the Greek term διασπείρω (to scatter or spread about)¹ before the development of the Diaspora studies in the XX century was predominantly a part of “religious vocabulary”². Used in the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible (Septuagint), it signified a threat of the dispersion of the people as a punishment for not obeying God’s commandments. According to Stephen Dufoix, the notion was thus applied to the acts of God’s intervention in people’s life³. Such use, which went beyond the purely physical dimension of the world, have poured into the concept of diaspora also a theological dimension. And this, in turn, brought it closer to the Jewish term golah (גולה), which, unlike galut (גלות), applies not only to physical or geographical scattering, but also includes theological, eschatological connotations: life outside the native land is a punishment, it has a destructive impact, but is temporal, and contains the hope of salvation – a return to their native land⁴. As a result, the history of exile, liberation, and returning became not only a essential narrative of the Jewish Bible but also a central element of the identity of Judaism as such, and hence a part of the semantic load of the notion of the *diaspora*⁵. The New Testament inherited and strengthened the eschatological connotation of the diaspora since early Christians saw themselves as a pilgrim people. The true homeland or destination of their journey was Heavenly Jerusalem⁶.

On the other hand, the case of the Jewish people shows that in diaspora, the importance of the religious aspect of identity increases, and it is becoming more closely intertwined with ethnic self-identification.

¹ Liddell, H. G., Scott, R. (ed.) (1996). Διασπείρω. A Greek-English Lexicon. Oxford: Clarendon Press.

² Dufoix, S. (2008). Diasporas. Berkeley: University of California Press, 75.

³ Ibid, 4.

⁴ Johnson, P. C. (2007). Diaspora Conversions: Black Carib Religion and the Recovery of Africa. Berkeley: University of California Press, 32; Glissmann, V. (2019). Out of Exile, not out of Babylon: The Diaspora Theology of the Golah. Mzuzu: Mzuni Press, 20-25.

⁵ Kenny, K. (2013). Diaspora: A Very Short Introduction. Oxford-New York: Oxford University Press, 4-6; McLoughlin, S. (2010). Religion and Diaspora. In J. R. Hinnells (Ed.), The Routledge Companion to the Study of Religion. London-New York: Routledge, 563.

⁶ Baumann, M. (2000). Diaspora: Genealogies of Semantics and Transcultural Comparison. Religions in the Disenchanted World, 3, 319.

This overlay enhances social ties and serves as an additional building block for a shared discourse of the diaspora community. From a broader perspective, religion, according to Christopher Paul Johnson, has the ability to become an “Anchor” of collective identity and helps to distinguish from the surrounding environment¹. Therefore, in the diaspora’s context, religion can play a much more significant role for people than it did at home. Studies on the part of religion in the diaspora’s life show that many of those who, before emigration, were indifferent to religious issues, when they got into new circumstances change their attitudes. Especially for the first generation of immigrants, religious communities become “home away from home”².

One reason for the growing role of religion in emigration is the relative ease of “transporting” it beyond its homeland compared to other elements of collective identity³. On the other hand, under new conditions, immigrants experience a difficult period of adaptation, which is often associated with a series of rapid and profound changes. The first generation of immigrants usually is experiencing a closer emotional connection with their native land, which, according to Thomas Tweed, provokes a more intense and deeper state of disorientation in the new country of residence. This is especially true for those immigrants who leave their land involuntarily. In essence, the forced break with the familiar social environment and even the native landscape contributes to the fact that the group is experiencing a permanent internal rift caused by disorientation in time (“before” and “after” emigration) and in space (life between “here” and “there”)⁴. Religion, on the contrary, appears as an “established system of meaning, a stable tradition, an orderly delineation of a potentially disorderly existence”⁵. According to Hans Mol, religion functions as a “harnesser” of change” and by which, to some extent, “many de-stabilizing aspects of immigrant existence could be managed”⁶. In other words, the rupture in time resulted from the emigration poses the problem of “continuity-discontinuity” for the new immigrants and religion, according to R. Schreiter, “provides a source of continuity in the migration experience, between homeland and new location”⁷. A similar role religion plays in the context of the rupture in space, securing to some extent the “continuity” of the native environment and helping to “keep the nostalgia alive”⁸.

However, not only religion impacts the lives of diasporas but also vice versa. The experience of the Jews shows that being in the diaspora can influence religious practices and even contributing to the emergence of new theological concepts. Not least because the diasporas are endowed with considerable potential for creativity. The paradigmatic example here is synagogal Judaism, which originated precisely in the conditions of exile⁹.

Since emigration, exile or displacement are closely connected with realities of “space and place,” it raises questions about the value of physical space and location for religious experience. Jonathan Smith, analyzing the role of the homeland in religious traditions of the late antiquity, noted that “for the native religionist, homeplace, the place to which one belongs, was the central religious category”¹⁰ such as Jerusalem and its temple for Jews. On the contrary, in the case of diaspora, freedom from a place becomes the central religious category¹¹. It means that for the members of the particular diaspora, the native land, its destiny, plays a less important role, and they developed religious practices that transcended specific, native lands,

¹ Johnson, P. C. (2012). Religion and Diaspora. Religion and Society, 1, 95. <https://doi.org/10.3167/arrs.2012.030106>.

² Warner, S. R. (1998). Immigration and Religious Communities in the United States. In S. R. Warner & J. G. Wittner (Ed.), Gatherings in Diaspora. Religious Communities and the New Immigration. Philadelphia: Temple University Press, 25.

³ Johnson, P. C. (2012). Religion and Diaspora. Religion and Society, 1, 95. <https://doi.org/10.3167/arrs.2012.030106>.

⁴ Tweed, T. A. (1997). Our Lady of the Exile: Diasporic Religion at a Cuban Catholic Shrine in Miami. New York: Oxford University Press, 85.

⁵ Mol, H. (1979). Theory and Data on the Religious Behaviour of Migrants. Social Compass, 1, 34. <https://doi.org/10.1177/003776867902600102>.

⁶ Ibid, 34-35.

⁷ Schreiter, R. (2017). Religion Displaced and Replaced: What We Have to Learn from Diaspora Communities. Budde, M. L. (ed.), Scattered and Gathered: Catholics in Diaspora. Eugene: Cascade Books, 17.

⁸ Ibid, 19.

⁹ Metzger, B. M., Coogan, M. D. (ed.) (1993). Babylon. The Oxford Companion to the Bible. New York: Oxford University Press, 71-72; Synagogue (2003). In T. Carson & J. Cerrito (Ed.), New Catholic encyclopedia. Detroit: Thomson/Gale – Catholic University of America; Cohen, R. (2008). Global diasporas: An introduction. London: Routledge, 7.

¹⁰ Smith, J. Z. (1993). A Map is not the Territory: Studies in the History of Religions. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

¹¹ Ibid.

making their religion more “universal.” For Smith, a process of such “universalization” of the former-local religious tradition can be outlined as diasporic religion or “a religion of “nowhere,” of transcendence”¹.

Smith’s observation is relevant only to some extent. It is true that the second and third generation of immigrants prioritizes universal features of their religious tradition as opposed to the specific and localized traditions connected with the land of their ancestors². It can result in the rapprochement between different representatives of the same religious tradition despite their national or ethnic roots. But such an outline of the diasporic religion is less applicable to the first generation of immigrants, which, as mentioned above, is experiencing harsh disorientation connected with the adaptation to the new environment.

Based on such inherent for the first and partly the second generation of immigrants experience, Thomas Tweed asserts that religion, in addition to all its usual functions, performs to them a transtemporal and translocative role. In other words, it helps to bridge the “gap” in time and space that results from emigration. This process, in turn, affects religion itself, resulting in the phenomenon which also might be outlined as a diasporic religion but which is relevant to the first generation of immigrants³. Serving as a transtemporal and translocative tool, according to Tweed, diasporic religion manifests itself, first of all, in the form of a narrative. In essence, diasporas retain memory and produce stories that “express attachment to the natal land, sacralize the new land, or form bridges between the two”⁴. As regards diasporic theology, which is a second aspect of the diasporic religion, Thomas Tweed asserts that it is also transtemporal and translocative, as far it “focuses on the community’s past and the homeland’s fate”⁵. Finding themselves in a new circumstance, usually marked by the dominance of the other religious and cultural traditions, diasporic theologians are “more concerned than ever to define the tradition doctrinally as the group struggles to maintain a national identity in the face of a host culture that appears to threaten it”⁶. For this reason, one of the central themes of the theological thought of the diaspora is the purity or “authenticity” of tradition, the prevention of confusion with the customs of others. On the other hand, sermons and publications of diasporic theologians are marked with “increased attention to national symbols”⁷. In the case of Tweed’s study of the Catholic Cuban diaspora in the USA, the last developed a diasporic theology which resembled paradigmatic Jewish theology of Babylonian exile. Seeing themselves as a “pilgrim Church,” Cuban immigrants suggested that their pilgrimage should end up with the *final liberation*⁸. What in the context of the political character of Cuban immigration after the Revolution of 1959 could also be treated as political liberation of their homeland.

It is worth adding that, according to Paul Christopher Johnson, the formation of the diasporic religion is based not merely on a reproduction of the religious tradition of the homeland, because, in the process of responding to external circumstances, it transforms itself. This process helps diaspora innovate and even invent new forms of religiosity. And as a consequence, diasporic religiosity may eventually conflict with the homeland tradition⁹.

Diasporic religion is also manifested at the level of creation of religious institutions that would also be translocative and transtemporal and help the diasporic community to preserve as close as possible ties with the homeland and its history. It also embodies in appropriate rituals through which the diaspora is forging links with those who live at home. Finally, diasporic religion manifests itself at the level of various artifacts: “utilitarian objects, art, architecture, and cultural landscape”¹⁰. That is, everything that allows immigrants “to symbolically move between homeland and new land /.../ remember the homeland’s past and imagine its future”¹¹.

¹ Ibid.

² McLoughlin, S. (2010). Religion and Diaspora. In J. R. Hinnells (Ed.), The Routledge Companion to the Study of Religion (p. 558–580). London-New York: Routledge, 572.

³ Tweed, T. A. (1997). Our Lady of the exile: Diasporic Religion at a Cuban Catholic Shrine in Miami. New York: Oxford University Press, 94-95.

⁴ Ibid, 95.

⁵ Ibid.

⁶ Ibid.

⁷ Ibid.

⁸ Ibid, 96.

⁹ Johnson, P. C. (2007). Diaspora Conversions: Black Carib Religion and the Recovery of Africa. Berkeley: University of California Press, 41.

¹⁰ Tweed, T. A. (1997). Our Lady of the Exile: Diasporic Religion at a Cuban Catholic Shrine in Miami. New York: Oxford University Press, 97.

¹¹ Ibid., 94-95.

The third wave of Ukrainian immigration was provoked by the events of the Second World War. Between 1945 and 1955, some 220,000-250,000 Ukrainians immigrated to North and South America, Australia and various parts of Western Europe. Most of them came from DP-camps in Germany and Austria, where they spent around 5-8 years¹. Along with the active political, social and cultural life, DP camps have become a medium for revitalizing religious practices. On the one hand, for the people from rural areas, religious celebrations served as a model for organized community life even before the war, and a visible symbol of group identity². On the other, the Church, especially for people from Galicia, was a “semi-political or national institution”³. Also, according to A. Baran, the phenomenon of the religious revival in DP-camps resulted from the religion’s ability to “recreate a spiritual presence of the lost fatherland in the psyches of the émigrés”⁴. Therefore, it became an essential element also in the life of the intelligentsia and politicians, some of whom before the war did not actively participate in its life or even were in opposition⁵. Thus during their stay in the DP-camps, post-war Ukrainian refugees developed not only a well-functioned community but established near 120 Greek-Catholic and 80 Orthodox parishes (around 2/3 of the third wave Ukrainian emigration were Greek-Catholics)⁶.

After their resettlement in different countries of the Western hemisphere, they met with the representatives of the previous waves of Ukrainian emigration. The religious life of the “old” Ukrainian emigration was well developed and newly arrived post-war immigrants poured into an established network of parishes and communities. The process endured quite smoothly, but in a few places, some conflicts have emerged (concerning the usage of English language in parish schools and during the liturgical services, implementation of the “new” calendar, architecture style of new churches etc.). The previous waves of the Ukrainian emigration were represented mostly by the second or third generation of immigrants; since they were on the second or even third stage of assimilation⁷. It became a real challenge for the newcomers, as far as one of the main goals of the third wave of Ukrainian emigration (which treated itself as an exiles and not as immigrants) was a preservation of the Ukrainian cultural heritage and a part its first-generation kept the idea of an eventual return to the homeland.

Having lost the opportunity for natural development and preserving the national culture, the third wave of Ukrainian immigration turned their sights to the Church, which, as it was mentioned above, played a role of the “national institution” even before the Second World War. On the other hand, during the 1950th, the newly arrived wave of emigration went through the adaptation process. For the first generation of immigrants, as mentioned above, it is always connected with rapid and profound changes. On its hand, the Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church played a crucial role in the process of the resettlement of the post-War emigration. It continued to play a significant role in their life in a new circumstance as a stable factor amid unstable realities. The Church also connected an immigrant community with their homeland and relatives,

¹ Subtelny, O. (1992). Ukrainian Political Refugees: An Historical Overview. In W. W. Isajiw (Ed.), The Refugee Experience: Ukrainian Displaced Persons After World War II (p. 3–20). Edmonton: Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies Press, University of Alberta; Stebelsky, I. (1992). Ukrainian Population Migration after World War II. In W. W. Isajiw (Ed.), The Refugee Experience: Ukrainian Displaced Persons After World War II (p. 21–66). Edmonton: Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies Press, University of Alberta; Sätzewich, V. (2002). The Ukrainian diaspora. London-New York: Routledge, 86-106.

² Bohachevsky-Chomiak, M. (2018). Ukrainian Bishop, American Church: Constantine Bohachevsky and the Ukrainian Catholic Church. Washington, D.C: The Catholic University of America Press, 21.

³ Baran, A. (1992). The Ukrainian Catholic Church. In W.W. Isajiw (Ed.), The Refugee Experience: Ukrainian Displaced Persons After World War II (p. 147-157). Edmonton: Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies Press, University of Alberta, 153.

⁴ Ibid, 154.

⁵ Sorokowski, A. (2002). The Lay and Clerical Intelligentsia in Greek Catholic Galicia, 1900–1939: Competition, Conflict, Cooperation. Harvard Ukrainian Studies, 1, 263-271.

⁶ Luciuk, L. Y. (2000). Searching for place: Ukrainian displaced persons, Canada, and the migration of memory. Toronto-Buffalo: University of Toronto Press, 146.

⁷ For further information about stages of assimilation, see Gordon, M. M. (1964). Assimilation in American life: The Role of Race, Religion, and National Origins. New York: Oxford University Press, 60-83; Pawliczko, A. L. (ed.). (1994). Ukraine and Ukrainians Throughout the World: A Demographic and Sociological Guide to the Homeland and its Diaspora. Toronto: Published for the Shevchenko Scientific Society by University of Toronto Press, 12-13; Morawska, E. (1994). In Defense of the Assimilation Model. Journal of American Ethnic History, 2, 76-87.

although the Church in USSR existed only in the underground. In sum, these factors provoked the development within the third wave of the Ukrainian diaspora, a phenomenon of the diasporic religion which manifested itself through the development of several lay organizations united under the general title *The Ukrainian Patriarchal Movement*¹.

Among the first manifestations of the emergence of the phenomenon of the diasporic religion within the third wave of the Ukrainian emigration was the struggle for the preservation of the Julian calendar in the liturgical life on the parishes of the Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church in the USA and Canada. In mid-1950, a few conflicts concerning the implementation of the Gregorian (or “New”) calendar took place on some Ukrainian Greek Catholic parishes in the USA. The main argument for the preservation of the “Old” calendar was a connection between the diaspora and the homeland that it has provided. According to activists of the Committee for the Preservation of Traditions of the Ukrainian Catholic Church in Chicago, which became one of the leading centers of the Patriarchal Movement, their wish to celebrate the holidays following the Julian calendar, was based on the desire to maintain “the closest connection with the Ukrainian people and to celebrate at the same time and in the same way that we have kept so far”². Again, according to the leadership of another organization that belonged to the Patriarchal Movement, the “Old” calendar provided “a unity with the Church in the Native Lands,” therefore, according to the authors of the letter to the Ukrainian bishops, this argument should be “the most binding factor” in favor of its preservation³. A bit naive, but vividly this argument was presented during the Constituent Assembly of Supporters of the Old Calendar, which took place on April 8, 1956, in Rochester (NY): “On the very day of Christ’s Resurrection our crippled Metropolitan will stretch out his crippled hands to bless the faithful of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, but this blessing will not come to us in due time”⁴.

The calendar, however, was not of value in itself but was seen as an integral part of the national and religious tradition in general. In combination with the broader religious tradition (rite, liturgical language etc.), which should have been preserved in all its integrity and fullness without any changes it became for the members of the Patriarchal Movement one of the key translocative and transtemporal elements, which was to ensure continuity with the past of homeland and its religious history, with the present and even with the future generations. Justifying the Struggle for the “Old” Calendar leaders of the Movement in Chicago cited a quote from the novel Uliana Kravchenko “Chrysanthemum,” where she described the emotions associated with the experience of participating in worship at the monastery in Hoshiv “/ ... / in the time of the prayerful ecstasy, I was conscious that my mother and a grandmother are also praying here, as well as their parents prayed here, and hundreds of years ago, my ancestors had been praying here. So will also pray our descendants”⁵. This liturgical aspect, as a result, organically and naturally provided a ritual basis necessary for the formation of the diasporic religion, which was not only of purely religious importance but also of national significance because of almost every celebration or national feast was accompanied with the religious ceremony.

Similarly, the phenomenon of the diasporic religion manifested itself through creating artifacts that have been connecting the country of settlement with the birthplace and been allowing immigrants to “move” home, remember its past and imagining its future. One example is the church of St. John the Baptist in Hunter (NY), built in 1962 in classic Hutsul style⁶. The construction was funded by representatives of the third wave of Ukrainian emigration and the church with a Parish Hall (“Grazhda”) became one of the favorite place for their rest and meetings, including members of the Patriarchal Movement. During the consecration of the church, one of the priests emphasized that it should be seen “as a precious memorial icon, which we,

¹ Сороковський, А. (2009). Нарис історії Українського Патріархального Руху. Матеріали до історії українського патріархального руху (1963-2001). Львів: Свічадо, 19-70.

² Чому існує Комітет оборони традицій Української Католицької Церкви в Чикаго. Архів парафії свв. Володимира і Ольги в Чикаго, «Г», Городиловський Юрій м.д.) б.п.

³ (1965, Грудень 11) Справи Української Католицької Церкви. Лист до Конференції українського католицького єпископату (ii). Вільне слово, 3.

⁴ Протокол ширших сходів українців греко-католиків – прихильників календаря старого стилю. Історичний архів УГКЦ в Римі, ф. 2, оп. IVa, спр. 395, арк. 9.

⁵ Кравченко, У. (1961). Хризантеми. Чикаго: Видавництво Миколи Денисюка, 77.

⁶ Українська Гантерська Парафія (2020). Про Церкву / About the Church. <<https://ukrainianmountaintop.org/about/>> (2020, March 25).

wanderers, took with us into emigration, to remind us of the native architecture and the native mountains with which it and we are connected”¹.

However, the paradigmatic example of the creation of specific sacred space was the church of St. Volodymyr and Olga in Chicago, which was treated within the Patriarchal Movement as exemplary and worthy of imitation. According to the architect of the church Yaroslav Korsunsky, it became “a moral victory of the Eastern Ukrainian tradition over denationalization and melting in the general “universal cauldron”².

Built in accordance with the traditions of Ukrainian-Byzantine style, it was almost a replica of the Cathedral of Saint Sophia in Rome built at the same time on the initiative of Josyf Slipyj, the head of the Greek-Catholic Church which was released in 1963, after eighteen years of imprisonment in the Soviet GULAG. The church of St. Volodymyr and Olha in Chicago was called to remind the parishioners not only of the most prominent Ukrainian Cathedral of St. Sophia in Kyiv and millennial tradition of Christianity associated with it, but also to connect them symbolically with the Church-center in diaspora and its head in Rome. In addition to this translocative aspect of the church, it also maintained a transtemporal one, since the painting of the interior, carried by the famous iconographer Ivan Dykyi (who also painted the “patriarchal” church of St. Nicholas in Toronto), was also designed in classical Byzantine-Ukrainian style and contained all known saints of the Ukrainian people from the beginning of the Christianization of Kyivan Rus³. Thus, a dedication of the church to the first saints of the Kyivan Church linked the diaspora to the sources of Ukrainian Christianity. According to Yaroslav Korsunsky, the impetus for the design of the church in the Kyivan-Byzantine style was a sense of disorientation and, thus, a desire to “recreate the path to the starting point, to the source”⁴. Painting of the interior, which includes saints starting from the Baptism of Kyivan Rus up to the times of Metropolitan Andrey Sheptytsky also served as a brief historical narrative which diasporas, according to Thomas Tweed, develop and cherish to maintain the continuity with the homeland’s past country and its religious history.

The historical narrative has also been embodied in the relevant texts of historians and theologians involved in the Patriarchal Movement. The works of the active members of the Patriarchal Movement, Mykola Chubaty and Petro Bilaniuk, were not just regular studies on the history of the Church in Ukraine. They share a common desire for both authors to demonstrate the deep roots and originality of the Ukrainian Christian tradition to emphasize equivalence with the traditions of other peoples.

Prof. Mykola Chubaty sought to substantiate the unique character of Ukrainian (Kyivan) Christianity, which, in his opinion, was an original synthesis of Eastern and Western Christianity that also absorbed best features of the pre-Christian culture of Rus and was headed by the Archbishop of Kyiv which was independent of both Rome and Constantinople. After the fall of the Kyivan state, Prof. Chubaty argues, “the Church has replaced the state power for the Ukrainians and became the only institution representing the whole nation”⁵. This notion stressing on the unifying and representative role of the Church for the stateless Ukrainian people became more important in the context of the diaspora, which wanted to maintain the unity not only with their homeland but also between scattered diasporic communities in the Western hemisphere. The other “patriarchal” activist, Petro Bilaniuk, a professor of theology at the University of Toronto, devoted much attention to the issue of the probability of the apostolic origin of the Ukrainian Church since he considered “unique historical development” important element for the establishment of the patriarchal Church⁶.

The development of theological thought within the framework of the Patriarchal Movement took place in a similar scenario, and its primary purpose was to define as clearly as possible the identity and self-

¹ Горняткевич, Д. (1963). Українське церковне мистецтво і його репрезентація. Листи до приятелів, 5-6, 38-41.

² Корсунський, Я. (1982). Спорудження храму святих Володимира і Ольги в Чикаго (Думки і спогади архітекта). Маркус, В. В. (ред.) Собор душ. Про пам’ятна книга Парафії Св. Володимира і Ольги. Чикаго: Ставропігія, 366.

³ Чировський, О. А. (1982). Церковний розпис собору святих Володимира і Ольги. Маркус, В. В. (ред.) Собор душ. Про пам’ятна книга Парафії Св. Володимира і Ольги. Чикаго: Ставропігія, 402-410.

⁴ Корсунський, Я. (1982). Спорудження храму святих Володимира і Ольги в Чикаго (Думки і спогади архітекта). Маркус, В. В. (ред.) Собор душ. Про пам’ятна книга Парафії Св. Володимира і Ольги. Чикаго: Ставропігія, 367.

⁵ Чубатий, М. (1965). Історія християнства на Русі-Україні (Том 1). Рим-Нью Йорк: Видання Українського Католицького Університету, 2.

⁶ Біланюк, О. П. (1995). Схема помісности Української Католицької Церкви. В Божа істина, краса і любов (с. 157). Дрогобич: Відродження; Bilaniuk, P. (1988). The Apostolic Origin of the Ukrainian Church. Parma: Published by Protection of the Blessed Virgin Mary Ukrainian Catholic Parish.

sufficiency of the Ukrainian theological and spiritual tradition, especially in the face of Western Christianity. Therefore, inherent for the diasporic theology desire to preserve the purity or whether “authenticity” of tradition and prevent it from mixing up with the other (“spiritual assimilation”), was manifested by representatives of the Patriarchal Movement through the crystallization of the distinct features of the theological tradition of the East in the face of the West, sometimes even opposing them each other.

The Decree of the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965) Orientalium Ecclesiarum played an important supporting role in this process. The phrase of the Decree that Eastern Catholics “can and should always preserve their lawful liturgical rites and their rule of law, / ... / and if they, for historical or personal reasons, depart from them, try to return to the ancestral traditions”¹, became the main basis for the permanent search for an authentic theological and spiritual tradition of Ukrainian Christianity. One of the few professional theologians in the Patriarchal Movement, Yevgen Ivankiv, was convinced that the ideal for Ukrainian Greek Catholics should be the “times of complete ritual and religious prosperity of 7th and 8th centuries in Byzantium, and for us Ukrainians – the time of Petro Mohyla in Ukraine”². He also believed that if the liturgical reforms of the Latin Church were aimed at a gradual ecumenical rapprochement with Protestants, then the task of the Eastern Catholics was to move to a meeting with the Orthodox. And since “the Eastern Christians never experiment with his rite”³, that is the whole religious tradition of the Ukrainian Greek-Catholics. In essence, the rite, spirituality, theology and canon law should be restored to the state in which they were before the Union of Brest, and especially to the Zamość Synod of 1720⁴. Again, in support of this thesis, Yevgen Ivankiv appealed to the Decree of Orientalium Ecclesiarum, which, while encouraging Eastern Catholics to approach ecumenical rapprochement with the Orthodox, called to do this with “religious fidelity to the ancient Eastern traditions”⁵. The restoration of authentic Eastern theology, which should determine all other aspects of the identity of the UGCC, has also been the focus of the mentioned above Petro Bilaniuk. As in the case of “unique history,” the “unique theological thought,” in his view, was one of the most important ideas that should be developed⁶.

Equally, vividly was the phenomenon of diasporic religion, presented in the creation of translocal institutions. First of all, it manifested itself in the leading idea of the Patriarchal Movement, namely, the support of the granting of the patriarchal status to the Ukrainian Greek-Catholic Church as such. The members of the Movement viewed the patriarchal institution solely as an extraterritorial structure, which was to unite not only the diaspora itself but also emigration and homeland. An essential unifying factor in this translocative institution was the person of Joseph Slipyj himself, who, while living in exile, was at the same time the head of the persecuted Church in Ukraine and combined the experience of both parts of the religious community by his example.

Conclusion. As in the cases of other diasporas in the case of the third wave of the Ukrainian emigration, religion has started to play a more significant role right after they departed from the homeland. On the one hand, this process was marked with certain inertia, but on the other religion started to function as a stabilizing factor in the process of adaptation of the first generation of new immigrants. The arguments they used when trying to defend old and familiar religious practices, the character of ideas and institutions they developed, show that they have seen religion and the Church as translocative and transtemporal means to struggle with disorientation and assimilation in a new circumstance. Thus, the Patriarchal Movement that was one of the institutionalized examples of this process can be seen as a Ukrainian case of the phenomenon of the diasporic religion.

¹ Vatican (2020). Decree on the Eastern Catholic Churches. La Santa Sede.

<http://www.vatican.va/archive/hist_councils/ii_vatican_council/documents/vat-ii_decree_19641121_orientalium-ecclesiarum_en.html> (2020, March 25).

² Іванків, Є. (1969). Ми і літургичні реформи західньої церкви. Вісник Української Католицької Парафії Святих Володимира і Ольги в Чикаго, 4.

³ Іванків, Є. (1970). За збереження справді східнього характеру нашої Церкви! Вісник Української Католицької Парафії Святих Володимира і Ольги в Чикаго, 15.

⁴ Іванків, Є. (1971). Унія та «Уніятизм». Вісник Української Католицької Парафії Святих Володимира і Ольги в Чикаго, 10, 1-2.

⁵ Vatican (2020). Decree on the Eastern Catholic Churches. La Santa Sede.

<http://www.vatican.va/archive/hist_councils/ii_vatican_council/documents/vat-ii_decree_19641121_orientalium-ecclesiarum_en.html> (2020, March 25).

⁶ Біланюк, О. П. (1995). Схема помісности Української Католицької Церкви. Божя істина, краса і любов. Дрогобич: Відродження, 157.

References:

1. Metzger, B. M., Coogan, M. D. (ed.) (1993). Babylon. The Oxford Companion to the Bible. New York: Oxford University Press, 71-72. [in English].
2. Baran, A. (1992). The Ukrainian Catholic Church. Isajiw W.W. (ed.) The Refugee Experience: Ukrainian Displaced Persons After World War II. Edmonton: Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies Press, University of Alberta, 147-157. [in English].
3. Baumann, M. (2000). Diaspora: Genealogies of Semantics and Transcultural Comparison. Religions in the Disenchanted World, 3, 313-337. [in English].
4. Bilaniuk, O. P. (1995). Skhema pomisnosti Ukrayinskoyi Katolyckoyi Cerkvy [Scheme of the ownership of the Ukrainian Catholic Church]. V Bozha istyna, krasa i lyubov [In God's truth, beauty and love]. Drohobych: Vidrodzhennya. [in Ukrainian].
5. Bilaniuk, P. (1988). The Apostolic Origin of the Ukrainian Church. Parma: Published by Protection of the Blessed Virgin Mary Ukrainian Catholic Parish. [in English].
6. Bohachevsky-Chomiak, M. (2018). Ukrainian Bishop, American Church: Constantine Bohachevsky and the Ukrainian Catholic Church. Washington, D.C: The Catholic University of America Press. [in English].
7. Archives of the parish of St. Vladimir and Olga in Chicago (2020). «H», Horodylovskyy Yuriy m.d. Chomu isnuye Komitet oborony tradycij Ukrayinskoyi Katolyckoyi Cerkvy v Chikago ["G", Yuriy Gorodilovsky Why is there a Committee to Protect the Traditions of the Ukrainian Catholic Church in Chicago], b.p. [in Ukrainian].
8. Chyrovskyy, O. A. (1982). Cerkovnyj rozpys soboru svyatykh Volodymyra i Olhy [Church painting of the Cathedral of Saints Vladimir and Olyia. Cathedral of souls]. Markus, V V. (red.) Sobor dush. Propamyatna knyha parafiyi Sv. Volodymyra i Olhy (s.) [Commemorative Book of St. Volodymyr and Olhy]. Chikago: Stavropihiya, 402-410. [in Ukrainian].
9. Chubaty, M. (1965). Istoriya Khrystyianstva na Rusy-Ukrayini [History of Christianity in Rus-Ukraine]. Rym-Nyu Jork: Vydannya Ukrayinskoho Katolyckoho Universytetu, 1. [in Ukrainian].
10. Cohen, R. (2008). Global diasporas: An introduction. London: Routledge, 240. [in English].
11. Vatican (2020). Decree on the Eastern Catholic Churches. La Santa Sede.
<http://www.vatican.va/archive/hist_councils/ii_vatican_council/documents/vat-ii_decree_19641121_orientalium-ecclesiarum_en.html> (2020, March 25). [in English].
12. Διοσπερίω. (1996). In H. G. Liddell & R. Scott (Ed.), A Greek-English Lexicon (p. 412). Oxford: Clarendon Press. [in English].
13. Dufoix, S. (2008). Diasporas. Berkeley: University of California Press, 136. [in English].
14. Glissmann, V. (2019). Out of Exile, not out of Babylon: The Diaspora Theology of the Golah. Mzuzu: Mzuni Press. [in English].
15. Gordon, M. M. (1964). Assimilation in American Life: The Role of Race, Religion, and National Origins. New York: Oxford University Press. [in English].
16. Hornyatkevych, D. (1963). Ukrayinske cerkovne mystecztvo i joho reprezentaciya [Ukrainian Church Art and Its Representation]. Lysty do pryvateliv [Letters to friends], 5-6, 38-41. [in Ukrainian].
17. Ivankiv, Ye. (1969). My i liturhichni reformy zakhidnoyi cerkvy [We and the liturgical reforms of the Western Church]. Visnyk Ukrayinskoyi Katolyckoyi Parafiyi Svyatykh Volodymyra i Olhy v Chikago [Bulletin of the Ukrainian Catholic Parish of Saints Vladimir and Olyiah in Chicago], 2, 4. [in Ukrainian].
18. Ivankiv, Ye. (1970). Za zberezhenntya spravdi skhidnogo kharakteru nashoyi Cerkvy! [For the preservation of the truly Eastern character of our Church!] Visnyk Ukrayinskoyi Katolyckoyi Parafiyi Svyatykh Volodymyra i Olhy v Chikago [Bulletin of the Ukrainian Catholic Parish of Saints Vladimir and Olyiah in Chicago], 14-15. [in Ukrainian].
19. Ivankiv, Ye. (1971). Uniya ta "Uniatyzm" [Union and Uniatism]. Visnyk Ukrayinskoyi Katolyckoyi Parafiyi Svyatykh Volodymyra i Olhy v Chikago [Bulletin of the Ukrainian Catholic Parish of Saints Vladimir and Olyiah in Chicago], 1-2. [in Ukrainian].
20. Johnson, P. C. (2007). Diaspora Conversions: Black Carib Religion and the Recovery of Africa. Berkeley: University of California Press. [in English].
21. Johnson, P. C. (2012). Religion and Diaspora. Religion and Society, 1, 95-114.
<https://doi.org/10.3167/arrs.2012.030106> [in English].
22. Kenny, K. (2013). Diaspora: A Very Short Introduction. Oxford-New York: Oxford University Press. [in English].
23. Kravchenko, U. (1961). Khryzantemy. Chikago: Vydavnytvo Mykoly Denysyuka. [in Ukrainian].
24. Korsunskyy, Ya. (1982). Sporudzhennya khramu svyatykh Volodymyra i Olhy v Chikago (Dumky i spohady arkhitekta). V V. Markus (red.), Sobor dush. Propamyatna knyha parafiyi Sv. Volodymyra i Olhy. Chikago: Stavropigiya, 366-370. [in Ukrainian].
25. Luciuk, L. Y. (2000). Searching for Place: Ukrainian Displaced Persons, Canada, and the Migration of Memory. Toronto-Buffalo: University of Toronto Press. [in English].
26. McLoughlin, S. (2010). Religion and Diaspora. In J. R. Hinnells (ed.), The Routledge Companion to the Study of Religion. London-New York: Routledge, 558-580. [in English].

27. Mol, H. (1979). Theory and Data on the Religious Behaviour of Migrants. Social Compass, 1, 34. <https://doi.org/10.1177/003776867902600102>. [in English].
28. Morawska, E. (1994). In Defense of the Assimilation Model. Journal of American Ethnic History, 2, 76-87. [in English].
29. Pawliczko, A. L. (ed.). (1994). Ukraine and Ukrainians throughout the world: A demographic and sociological guide to the homeland and its diaspora. Toronto: Published for the Shevchenko Scientific Society by University of Toronto Press. [in English].
30. Ukrainian Mountaintop (2020). Pro Cerkvu [About the Church]. <<https://ukrainianmountaintop.org/about/>> (2020, March 25). [in English].
31. Istorychnyj arkhiv UGKC v Rymi [Protocol of the Greater Ladder of Ukrainian Greek Catholics – Old Style Calendar Adherents]. Protokol shyrshykh skhodyn ukrayinciv hreko-katolykiv – prykhylnykiv kalendarya starogo stylyu [Historical archive of the UGCC in Rome]., f. 2, op. IVa, spr. 395, ark. 9. [in Ukrainian].
32. Satzewich, V. (2002). The Ukrainian diaspora. London-New York: Routledge. [in English].
33. Schreiter, R. (2017). Religion Displaced and Replaced: What We Have to Learn from Diaspora Communities. In Budde, M. L. (ed.), Scattered and gathered: Catholics in Diaspora. Eugene: Cascade Books, 11-22. [in English].
34. Smith, J. Z. (1993). A Map is not the Territory: Studies in the History of Religions. Chicago: University of Chicago Press. [in English].
35. Sorokowski, A. (2002). The Lay and Clerical Intelligentsia in Greek Catholic Galicia, 1900-1939: Competition, Conflict, Cooperation. Harvard Ukrainian Studies, 1, 261-290. [in English].
36. Sorokowski, A. (2009). Narys istoriyi Ukrayinskoho Patriyarkhalnoho Rukhu [An outline of the history of the Ukrainian Patriarchal Movement]. Sorokowski, V A. (ed.) Materiyaly do istoriyi Ukrayinskoho patriyarkhalnoho rukhu (1963-2001) [(Materials) to the History of the Ukrainian Patriarchal Movement (1963-2001)]. Lviv: Svichado, 19-70. [in Ukrainian].
37. Spravy Ukrayinskoyi Katolyckoyi Cerkvy [Affairs of the Ukrainian Catholic Church] (1965). Lyst do Konferenciyi ukrayinskoho katolyckoho yepyskopatu [Letter to the Conference of the Ukrainian Catholic Bishopric]. Vilne slovo [Free word], 3. [in Ukrainian].
38. Stebelsky, I. (1992). Ukrainian Population Migration after World War II. Isajiw, W. W. (ed.) The Refugee Experience: Ukrainian Displaced Persons After World War II (p.). Edmonton: Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies Press, University of Alberta, 21-66. [in English].
39. Subtelny, O. (1992). Ukrainian Political Refugees: An Historical Overview. In W. W. Isajiw (Ed.), The Refugee Experience: Ukrainian Displaced Persons After World War II (p. 3–20). Edmonton: Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies Press, University of Alberta. [in English].
40. Synagogue. (2003). In T. Carson & J. Cerrito (Ed.), New Catholic encyclopedia (2. ed, Vol. 13, p. 674–675). Detroit: Thomson/Gale – Catholic University of America. [in English].
41. Tweed, T. A. (1997). Our Lady of the Exile: Diasporic Religion at a Cuban Catholic Shrine in Miami. New York: Oxford University Press. [in English].
42. Warner, S. R. (1998). Immigration and Religious Communities in the United States. Warner S. R., Wittner, J. G. (ed.), Gatherings in Diaspora. Religious Communities and the New Immigration. Philadelphia: Temple University Press, 3-34. [in English].

Zveme vás k účasti v časopise!

EVROPSKÝ FILOZOFICKÝ A HISTORICKÝ DISKURZ

Časopis vychází čtyřkrát ročně.

Články pro zveřejnění v prvním dílu časopisu jsou přijímány do dne 01. dubna a musí být publikovány do dne 30. dubna.

Články pro zveřejnění v druhém dílu časopisu jsou přijímány do dne 01. června a musí být publikovány do dne 30. června.

Články pro zveřejnění v třetím dílu časopisu jsou přijímány do dne 01. října a musí být publikovány do dne 31. října.

Články pro zveřejnění ve čtvrtém dílu časopisu jsou přijímány do dne 01. prosince a musí být publikovány do dne 31. prosince.

Doba konečného přinesení článků pro každé číslo časopisu je přibližná. Vzhledem k tomu že je až moc velký počet položek v portfoliu redakce, redakční rada může libovolně změnit tuto dobu.

Požadávky k rukopisům:

Objem - 10–30 stranek. Jazyk článků – česky, ukrajinský, angličtina, francouzština, němčina.

U článků podávaných v libovolném jazyce, nezbytně v angličtině musí být uvedeno :

Anotace objemem 700-900 znaků, název článku a úplná informace o autorovi: jméno a příjmení, titul, akademický titul, pracovní funkce, postavení, zaměstnání.

Poznámky pod čarou – na každé stránce.

Odkazy na zdroje na konci článku – volitelný.

Bibliografické popisy zdrojů a odkazy by měly být poskytovány na základě norem APA (American Psychological Association).

Ilustrace k článkům (grafické a výkresy) musí být uvedený ve formátu TIFF nebo JPEG (každá postava v samostatném souboru/dokumentu).

Všimněte si, prosíme, při zpracování ilustraci že v časopisu není použit barevný tisk.

Rukopisy které nesplňují tyto technické požadavky redakční kolégie neregistruje a nebude probírat s účelem tisku a zveřejnění.

Adresa pro korespondenci:

E-mail: publications@ephd.cz

Web: <http://ephd.cz>

Adresa:

BEROSTAV DRUŽSTVO, Vlastislavova 562/15, 140 00, Praha 4 - Nusle

PŘÍKLADY ÚPRAVY BIBLIOGRAFICKÉHO POPISU ZDROJŮ A LITERATURY DLE POŽADAVKŮ APA-STYLE

Všeobecná pravidla:

Bibliografický popis zdrojů a literatury v odkazech na každé stránce a v transliterovaném seznamu literatury (references) musí být zpracován na základě norem APA-Style, v souladu s požadavky APA (American Psychological Association). Níže jsou uvedeny příklady zpracování nejběžnějších bibliografických zdrojů. Více informace dostanete na stránce <http://www.apastyle.org>.

Při úpravě bibliografických popisů zdrojů a literatury dejte si pozor na způsob psaní: rovně a kurzivou (Italic) a také na postupnost umístění prvků odkazu.

Paginální odkazy na zdroje a literaturu se uvádí v původním jazyce (v jazyce originálů), totiž nepřekládají se a netransliterují se. Citace jsou také uváděny v původním jazyce článku.

Seznam literatury (references) na konci článku se uvádí latinkou. Pokud se musí uvést odkaz na články v písmu cyrilici (včetně článků v ukrajinštině nebo v ruštině) otištěné dříve v časopisech a sbírkách, doporučujeme tuto variantu struktury bibliografických odkazů v sekci References:

- Jméno a příjmení autora/-ů (transliterace);
- Transliterovaný název článku a jeho překlad v angličtině, který má být umístěn v hranatých závorkách: [];
- Název zdroje (transliterace) a překlad jeho názvy v jazyce anglickém: [];
- Výchozí údaje s anglickým zápisem.

V seznamu literatury (references) místo vydání pro zdroje v jazyce anglickém a ukrajinském se uvádí v angličtině, a název nakladatelství se transliteruje.

Pro automatickou transliteraci názvů zdrojů v písmu cyrilici dá se použít další stránky:

- pro zdroje v ruštině: <http://www.translit.ru>,
- pro zdroje v ukrajinštině: <http://www.slovnkyk.ua/services/translit.php>.

Odkaz na web-zdroje se má sestavit dalším způsobem: jméno autora web-stránky, název stránky, název web-stránky (píše se kurzivou (Italic)), adresu web-stránky oddělenou znaky < >: <URL> a pokud je možné datum poslední návštěvy/ náhledu web-stránky v zaoblených závorkách: () . Název měsíce nahlédnutí do web-stránky se uvádí v jazyce článku.

Pro vaše pohodlí jsou následující příklady uvádění zdrojů a literatury rozděleny podle typu zdroje, a každý se uvádí ve dvou variantách po sobě: první je příklad odkazu na každé stránce, druhý je příklad odkazu na stejný zdroj, jenže jak se má uvádět v seznamu literatury (references).

Monografie:

Classen, A. (2007). Old Age in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance: Interdisciplinary Approaches to a Neglected Topic. Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 575.

Classen, A. (2007). Old Age in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance: Interdisciplinary Approaches to a Neglected Topic. Berlin: Walter de Gruyter. [in English].

Скальковський, А. (1994). Історія Нової Січі, або останнього Коша Запорозького. Дніпропетровськ: Січ, 678.

Skalkovskyi, A. (1994). Istoriia Novoi Sichi, abo ostann'oho Kosha Zaporozkoho [History of the New Host or the last government Zaporizhia]. Dnipropetrovsk: Sich. [In Ukrainian]

Moynihan, D.P., Glazer, N. (1975). Ethnicity: Theory and Experience. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 5.

Moynihan, D.P., Glazer, N. (1975). Ethnicity: Theory and Experience. Cambridge: Harvard University Press. [in English]

Мазуренко, В. Ішук, О. (2008). Василь Кук Головний командир УПА. Рівне: Видавець Олег Зень, 14-21.

Mazurenko, V. Ishchuk, O. (2008). Vasyl Kuk Holovnyi komandyr UPA. [Vasyl Kuk is the Chief commander of the UPA]. Rivne: Vydavets Oleh Zen. [in Ukrainian].

Článek v časopise:

Bauerlein, M. (2004-2005). Booker T. Washington and W. E. B. Du Bois: The origins of a bitter intellectual battle. The Journal of Blacks in Higher Education, 46, 106-114.

Bauerlein, M. (2004-2005). Booker T. Washington and W. E. B. Du Bois: The origins of a bitter intellectual battle. The Journal of Blacks in Higher Education, no. 46, 106-114. [in English].

Musilová, K. (2017). Možnosti aplikace konceptu postmateriálního štěpení na substatních úrovních. Central European Political Studies Review, 19(1), 55-75. doi:http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2017.1.55

Musilová, K. (2017). Možnosti aplikace konceptu postmaterialního shtepeni na substatnih urovnih. [The Possibilities and Limits of Applying the Concept of Postmaterial Cleavage on Sub-State Levels]. Central European Political Studies Review, no. 19(1), 55-75. doi: http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2017.1.55 [in Czech].

Nye, J.S., Owens, W.A. (1996). America's Information Edge. Foreign Affairs, March/April, 49-67.

Nye, J.S., Owens, W.A. (1996). America's Information Edge. Foreign Affairs, March/April, 49-67. [in English].

Botan, M., Corbu, N., Sandu, D. (2016). The complicated relation between news frames and political trust: a case study of Romania. Středoevropské politické studie, 18(2-3), 122-140. doi:http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2016.23.122

Botan, M., Corbu, N., Sandu, D. (2016). The complicated relation between news frames and political trust: a case study of Romania. Stredoevropske politichke studie. [The Middle East European Political Studies], no. 18(2-3), 122-140. doi:http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2016.23.122 [in English].

Teze a myšlenky konference:

Башлик, Д.О. (2015). Історичні передумови для сучасного економічного суперництва Японії та Китаю. Політологія, філософія, соціологія: контури міждисциплінарного перетину: матеріали III Міжнародної науково-практичної конференції (м. Одеса, 15-16 жовтня 2015 р.), 89-91.

Bashlik, D.O. (2015). Istorichni peredumovi dlya suchasnoho ekonomichnogo supernictva Yaponiy ta Kitayu. [Historical prerequisites for the current economic rivalry of Japan and China]. Politologiya, filosofiya, sociologiya: konturi mizhdisciplinarnogo peretinu: materialy III Mizhnarodnoi naukovo-praktichnoi konferencii (m. Odesa, 15-16 zhovtnya 2015 r.). [Political science, philosophy, sociology: contours of the interdisciplinary section: materials of the 3rd International Scientific and Practical Conference (Odesa, October 15-16, 2015)], 89-91. [in Ukrainian].

Давиденко, М.Л., Сірик, О.М. (2013) Сучасні проблемні питання тлумачення статті 152 Кримінального кодексу України. Правове життя сучасної України: матеріали Міжнародної наукової конференції професорсько-викладацького та аспірантського складу (м. Одеса, 16-17 травня 2013 р.), 2, 284-285.

Davidenko, M.L., Sirik, O.M. (2013) Suchasni problemni pitannya tлумachennya statti 152 Kriminalnogo kodeksu Ukraini. [Current issues of interpretation of Article 152 of the Criminal Code of Ukraine]. Pravove zhittya suchasnoi Ukraini: materialy Mizhnarodnoi naukovo konferencii profesorsko-vikladackogo ta aspirantskogo skladu (m. Odesa, 16-17 travnya 2013 r.) [The Legal Life of Modern Ukraine: Materials of the International Scientific Conference of the Teaching and Postgraduate Students (Odessa, May 16-17, 2013)], 2, 284-285. [in Ukrainian].

Odkazy na web-stránky:

Burghardt, W.E.B. Strivings in the Negro People. World edition – The Atlantic. <<https://goo.gl/EntdDB>> (2016, August, 20).

Burghardt, W.E.B. Strivings in the Negro People. World edition – The Atlantic. <<https://goo.gl/EntdDB>> [in English]. (2016, August, 20).

Тихонов, А. К. Политика Российской империи по отношению к католикам, мусульманам, иудеям в последней четверти XVIII – начале XX в. disserCat - электронная библиотека диссертаций.

<www.dissercat.com/content/politika-rossiiskoi-imperii-po-otnosheniyu-k-katolikam-musulmanam-iudeyam-v-poslednei-chetve> (2017, февраль, 01).

Tihonov, A.K. (2008). Politika Rossijskoj imperii po otnosheniju k katolikam, musul'manam, iudejam v poslednej chetverti XVIII – nachale XX v. [Politics of the Russian Empire in relationships for Catholics, Muslims, yudeyam in posledney fourth XVIII - early twentieth century]. dissercat - ehlektronnaya biblioteka dissertacij. [dissercat - electronic library of dissertations]. <www.dissercat.com/content/politika-rossiiskoi-imperii-po-otnosheniyu-k-katolikam-musulmanam-iudeyam-v-poslednei-chetve> (2017, February, 01). [in Russian].

Hadiz, V.R., Chryssogelos A. Populism in world politics: A comparative cross-regional perspective. International Political Science Review: SAGE Journals. <<http://journals.sagepub.com/doi/full/10.1177/0192512117693908>> (2017, September, 18).

Hadiz, V.R., Chryssogelos A. Populism in world politics: A comparative cross-regional perspective. International Political Science Review: SAGE Journals. <<http://journals.sagepub.com/doi/full/10.1177/0192512117693908>> [in English]. (2017, September, 18).

How Martin Luther King's 'I Have A Dream' Speech Changed The World. The World Post. <<http://goo.gl/8qpRnr>> (2016, December, 10).

How Martin Luther King's 'I Have A Dream' Speech Changed The World. The World Post. <<http://goo.gl/8qpRnr>> [in English]. (2016, December, 10).

Archivní zdroje a rukopisy:

Державний архів Хмельницької області, ф.120, оп.1, спр.91, 25 арк.

Derzhavnyi arkhiv Khmelnytskyi oblasti [State Archives of Khmelnytsky Region], f. 120, op. 1, spr. 91. [in Ukrainian].

Інститут рукопису ЦНБ ім. В.І. Вернадського, Ф. 9, Оп. 1, Спр. 1527–1578, арк. 14.

Institut rukopysu TsNB im. V.I. Vernadskoho [Institute of Manuscript V.I. Vernadsky Central Scientific Library], F. 9, Op. 1, Spr. 1527–1578. [In Church Slavonic]

Центральний державний історичний архів України в м. Києві, ф. 442, оп. 445, спр.15, арк. 46.

Tsentralnyi derzhavnyi istorychnyi arkhiv Ukrainy v m. Kyievi [Central State Historical Archive of Ukraine in Kyiv], f. 533, op. 1-a, spr. 15 [in Ukrainian].

Become a Contributor for the Journal

EUROPEAN PHILOSOPHICAL AND HISTORICAL DISCOURSE

The Journal is issued 4 times per year.

Articles for publication in the first issue of the Journal are accepted until April, 1 and will be published until April, 30.

Articles for publication in the second issue of the Journal are accepted until June, 1 and will be published until June, 30.

Articles for publication in the third issue of the Journal are accepted until October, 1 and will be published until October, 31.

Articles for publication in the fourth issue of the Journal are accepted until December, 1 and will be published until December, 31.

Requirements to manuscripts

Page Limit is 10 – 30 pages (TNR, 14, interval – 1,5)

The language of articles is Czech, Ukrainian, English, Polish, French and German.

For an article in any language, which is submitted to the Journal the following is required:

- full first, middle and last name of an author, a title of an article, an abstract (700-900 characters) and keywords in English and in a language of an article;
- complete information about an author; academic title, academic degree, position, and place of employment in English and in a language of an article;
- footnotes are allowed, no endnotes. Footnotes should be given page by page in original language, that is not to be translated or transliterated;
- usual list of bibliography is not required in the end of an article;
- however, the list of cited and used in an article literature is additionally required in the end and should be given in Latinised form. All Cyrillic letters should be transliterated to Latin script.

Page by page footnotes (with numeration on every page) should be performed by means of so called “automatic references” in MS WORD.

Bibliography description of literature should be arranged in accordance with the agreements of the American Psychological Association (APA). The examples are given below.

Illustrations to articles (graphics and images) should be submitted in the TIFF or JPEG format (each image in a separate file). While preparing illustrations authors should take into account that colour printing is not available in the Journal.

The editorial board do not register and do not review for publication manuscripts that do not comply with the aforementioned requirements.

Address for service:

E-mail: publications@ephd.cz

Web: <http://ephd.cz>

Mailing Address:

BEROSTAV DRUŽSTVO, Vlastislavova 562/15, 140 00, Praha 4 - Nusle

RULES AND EXAMPLES OF REFERENCING ACCORDING TO APA-STYLE REQUIREMENTS

General rules:

Bibliographic descriptions of sources and literature in footnotes and transliterated list of sources (references) should be arranged in accordance with the agreements of the American Psychological Association (APA). Below are examples of how to arrange the most common bibliographic sources. For more information see: <http://www.apastyle.org>

When arranging bibliographic descriptions of sources and literature it is necessary to consider regular and cursive (Italic) text fonts, as well as the sequence of elements in a reference.

Footnotes should be provided in the original language of a source to which you refer, that is, they are not translated or transliterated. Quotes within the article should be provided in the language of the article.

References at the end of the article should be Latinized. When making bibliographic references to Cyrillic (including Ukrainian and Russian) articles, published in journals and almanacs, we strongly recommend the following structure of references:

- Name of author/authors (transliterated);
- original title of the article transliterated by Latin symbols and its English translation in square brackets [];
- original title of the source transliterated by Latin symbols and its English translation in square brackets [];
- publisher's imprint information in English.

In References, when indicating a city of publication both in English and Cyrillic sources, the name of the city should be given in English, while the name of the publishing house should be transliterated.

For automatic transliteration of Cyrillic sources, you can use the following resources <http://www.translit.ru> – for sources in Russian; and <http://www.slovnyk.ua/services/translit.php> – for sources in Ukrainian.

When arranging references on website materials, a reference should include author's name, title of the page, name of the site (typed in Italic font), site address <URL>, marked by <> symbols, and, if possible, the date when this page was last browsed (in round brackets). The month is provided in the language of the article.

For your convenience, below you can see examples of arranging bibliographic descriptions of sources and literature organized by source type; each one is given in two formats sequentially: the first one is the footnote example; the second is the example of arranging the same source in References.

Monograph:

Gordon, M.M. (1964). Assimilation in American life. The role of Race, Religion and National Origins. New York: Oxford University Press, 74.

Gordon, M.M. (1964). Assimilation in American life. The role of Race, Religion and National Origins. New York: Oxford University Press. [in English]

Скальковський, А. (1994). Історія Нової Січі, або останнього Коша Запорозького. Дніпропетровськ: Січ, 678.

Skalkovskyi, A. (1994). Istoriia Novoi Sichi, abo ostann'oho Kosha Zaporozkoho [History of the New Host or the last government Zaporizhia]. Dnipropetrovsk: Sich. [In Ukrainian]

Moynihan, D.P., Glazer, N. (1975). Ethnicity: Theory and Experience. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 5.

Moynihan, D.P., Glazer, N. (1975). Ethnicity: Theory and Experience. Cambridge: Harvard University Press. [in English]

Мазуренко, В. Іщук, О. (2008). Василь Кук Головний командир УПА. Рівне: Видавець Олег Зень, 14-21.

Mazurenko, V. Ishchuk, O. (2008). Vasyl Kuk Holovnyi komandyr UPA. [Vasyl Kuk is the Chief commander of the UPA]. Rivne: Vydavets Oleh Zen. [in Ukrainian].

Journal article:

Bauerlein, M. (2004-2005). Booker T. Washington and W. E. B. Du Bois: The origins of a bitter intellectual battle. The Journal of Blacks in Higher Education, 46, 106-114.

Bauerlein, M. (2004-2005). Booker T. Washington and W. E. B. Du Bois: The origins of a bitter intellectual battle. The Journal of Blacks in Higher Education, no. 46, 106-114. [in English].

Musilová, K. (2017). Možnosti aplikace konceptu postmateriálního štěpení na substatních úrovních. Central European Political Studies Review, 19(1), 55-75. doi:<http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2017.1.55>

Musilová, K. (2017). Možnosti aplikace konceptu postmaterialního shtepeni na substatnih urovnih. [The Possibilities and Limits of Applying the Concept of Postmaterial Cleavage on Sub-State Levels]. Central European Political Studies Review, no. 19(1), 55-75. doi: <http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2017.1.55> [in Czech].

Nye, J.S., Owens, W.A. (1996). America's Information Edge. Foreign Affairs, March/April, 49-67.

Nye, J.S., Owens, W.A. (1996). America's Information Edge. Foreign Affairs, March/April, 49-67. [in English].

Botan, M., Corbu, N., Sandu, D. (2016). The complicated relation between news frames and political trust: a case study of Romania. Středoevropské politické studie, 18(2-3), 122-140. doi: <http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2016.23.122>

Botan, M., Corbu, N., Sandu, D. (2016). The complicated relation between news frames and political trust: a case study of Romania. Stredoevropske politichke studie. [The Middle East European Political Studies], no. 18(2-3), 122-140. doi:<http://dx.doi.org/10.5817/CEPSR.2016.23.122> [in English].

Conference paper:

Башлик, Д.О. (2015). Історичні передумови для сучасного економічного суперництва Японії та Китаю. Політологія, філософія, соціологія: контури міждисциплінарного перетину: матеріали III Міжнародної науково-практичної конференції (м. Одеса, 15-16 жовтня 2015 р.), 89-91.

Bashlik, D.O. (2015). Istorichni peredumovi dlya suchasnoho ekonomichnogo supernictva Yaponiy ta Kitayu. [Historical prerequisites for the current economic rivalry of Japan and China]. Politologiya, filosofiya, sociologiya: konturi mizhdisciplinarnogo peretinu: materialy III Mizhnarodnoi naukovo-praktichnoi konferencii (m. Odesa, 15-16 zhovtnya 2015 r.). [Political science, philosophy, sociology: contours of the interdisciplinary section: materials of the 3rd International Scientific and Practical Conference (Odesa, October 15-16, 2015)], 89-91. [in Ukrainian].

Давиденко, М.Л., Сірик, О.М. (2013) Сучасні проблемні питання тлумачення статті 152 Кримінального кодексу України. Правове життя сучасної України: матеріали Міжнародної наукової конференції професорсько-викладацького та аспірантського складу (м. Одеса, 16-17 травня 2013 р.), 2, 284-285.

Davidenko, M.L., Sirik, O.M. (2013) Suchasni problemni pitannya tлумachennya statti 152 Kriminalnogo kodeksu Ukraini. [Current issues of interpretation of Article 152 of the Criminal Code of Ukraine]. Pravove zhittya suchasnoi Ukraini: materialy Mizhnarodnoi naukovoї konferencii profesorsko-vikladackogo ta aspirantskogo skladu (m. Odesa, 16-17 travnya 2013 r.) [The Legal Life of Modern Ukraine: Materials of the International Scientific Conference of the Teaching and Postgraduate Students (Odessa, May 16-17, 2013)], 2, 284-285. [in Ukrainian].

Web-link:

Burghardt, W.E.B. Strivings in the Negro People. World edition – The Atlantic. <<https://goo.gl/EntdDB>> (2016, August, 20).

Burghardt, W.E.B. Strivings in the Negro People. World edition – The Atlantic. <<https://goo.gl/EntdDB>> [in English]. (2016, August, 20).

Тихонов, А. К. Политика Российской империи по отношению к католикам, мусульманам, иудеям в последней четверти XVIII – начале XX в. disserCat - электронная библиотека диссертаций.

<www.dissercat.com/content/politika-rossiiskoi-imperii-po-otnosheniyu-k-katolikam-musulmanam-iudeyam-v-poslednei-chetve> (2017, февраль, 01).

Tihonov, A.K. (2008). Politika Rossijskoj imperii po otnosheniju k katolikam, musul'manam, iudejam v poslednej chetverti XVIII – nachale XX v. [Politics of the Russian Empire in relationships for Catholics, Muslims, yudeyam in posledney fourth XVIII - early twentieth century]. dissercat - ehlektronnaya biblioteka dissertacij. [dissercat - electronic library of dissertations]. <www.dissercat.com/content/politika-rossiiskoi-imperii-po-otnosheniyu-k-katolikam-musulmanam-iudeyam-v-poslednei-chetve> (2017, February, 01). [in Russian].

Hadiz, V.R., Chryssogelos A. Populism in world politics: A comparative cross-regional perspective. International Political Science Review: SAGE Journals. <<http://journals.sagepub.com/doi/full/10.1177/0192512117693908>> (2017, September, 18).

Hadiz, V.R., Chryssogelos A. Populism in world politics: A comparative cross-regional perspective. International Political Science Review: SAGE Journals. <<http://journals.sagepub.com/doi/full/10.1177/0192512117693908>> [in English]. (2017, September, 18).

How Martin Luther King's 'I Have A Dream' Speech Changed The World. The World Post. <<http://goo.gl/8qpRnr>> (2016, December, 10).

How Martin Luther King's 'I Have A Dream' Speech Changed The World. The World Post. <<http://goo.gl/8qpRnr>> [in English]. (2016, December, 10).

Archival sources and manuscripts

Державний архів Хмельницької області, ф.120, оп.1, спр.91, 25 арк.

Derzhavnyi arkhiv Khmelnytskoi oblasti [State Archives of Khmelnytsky Region], f. 120, op. 1, spr. 91. [in Ukrainian].

Інститут рукопису ЦНБ ім. В.І. Вернадського, Ф. 9, Оп. 1, Спр. 1527–1578, арк. 14.

Institut rukopysu TsNB im. V.I. Vernadskoho [Institute of Manuscript V.I. Vernadsky Central Scientific Library], F. 9, Op. 1, Spr. 1527–1578. [In Church Slavonic]

Центральний державний історичний архів України в м. Києві, ф. 442, оп. 445, спр.15, арк. 46.

Tsentralnyi derzhavnyi istorychnyi arkhiv Ukrainy v m. Kyievi [Central State Historical Archive of Ukraine in Kyiv], f. 533, op. 1-a, spr. 15 [in Ukrainian].